42. Further Description of Important Interior and Exterior Features (Continued on Reverse if Necessary) Stanton Hall is a 3-1/2 story red brick gable-roofed residential hall built in 1961 in a Georgian Revival style. It is similar in design to the other dormitories facing the same quad. The building has a long rectangular orientation, with wings that step down from the main center block. At the south end a wing is turned 90 degrees east toward Maple Street. The center block has 7 bays with roof dormers and a pair of gable end chimneys in the Georgian Revival style. Other details are classically inspired as well, including 8-over-8 window sash, Flemish bond brick pattern, front door with sidelights and entablature surround, pedimented dormers and cornice modillions. The wood front entry porch has cornice modillions, paired Doric columns and a geometric balustrade.
43. History and Significance (Continue on Reverse if necessary) Stanton Hall is part of a group of four large dormitories and dining hall built from 1956-1961 facing what is known as the South Quadrangle of the South Campus of Miami University. This area had formerly been the site of the Miami Lodges, temporary housing constructed in 1947 to house approximately 600 men who came to campus following WWII. The South Quad dorms were built in response to enrollment increases. Porter Hall was built in 1956, followed by Anderson Hall, Dodds Hall, Stanton Hall and Harris Dining Hall in 1961. The 1961 buildings were designed by the architectural firm of Cellarius and Hilmer. Stanton Hall was dedicated in September 1961 in honor of Robert Livingston Stanton, a Presbyterian minister and editor who was Miami's sixth president, from 1866-1871.
44. Description of Environment and Outbuildings (See #52) Occupies a location on the east side of the quadrangle, in the vicinity of other similar dormitories from the same period.
